november 16-17, 2019

What is SigmaHacks?

SigmaHacks is a 28 hour hackathon designed for high school students to unleash their potential in a fun, safe environment. During these intense 28 hours of coding, collaborating, and creating, the 300 attendees will be inventing new solutions to real-world problems. The hackers will be provided with meals and additional snacks, while they code. After the creating period of the hackathon, projects will be judged. Prizes will be awarded!

Our mission is to expose more teens to STEM fields in an exciting, interactive way. In addition, we aim to make girls more comfortable collaborating with others in tech fields and more confident in their skills in order to decrease the gender gap.

To make this hackathon possible, SigmaHacks is in need of sponsors. Our goal is to raise $25,000.

Why become a sponsor?

By becoming a sponsor, you can enjoy the benefits of each tier, while creating strong, lasting relations with the engineers of the next generation. Although the hackathon is just for younger coders, your company can still have a heavy influence on the coders' futures by introducing them to new coding languages and ideas through product demos and mentors.

Where will your money go?

Your money will go to all the necessities needed to making this event possible, such as the venue, food, prizes, and more.

Other ways to help:

- Send mentors
- Send judges
- Be a guest speaker

Interested?

Contact us at sponsor@sigmahacks.org. All sponsorships are negotiable and can be discussed in more detail. We would be more than happy to discuss a custom tier.
